

This site is for informational purposes only for those interested in my work or seeking to become a client. Copy or use of any information in this site is subject to copyright laws. Email to request permission of use can be done at: information@drvic.org

Website use is at user's risk, and materials are provided "as is" without warranties. This business is not liable for damages resulting from use. Proprietor licenses are LPCC, LPC with educational degrees ranging from undergrad in psychology, criminology, and education to graduate degrees of masters in Professional Counseling and PsyD (ABD) which means I met all requirements of a doctorate in psychology except submission of my research dissertation. DrVic is a nickname and branding label given by colleagues during a tenure in government while completing my doctoral research and is not representative of a medical qualification. This business assumes no responsibility for errors, omissions, or actions taken based on the content herein. Links to external sites are for convenience, and this business is not responsible for their content.